To Whom It May Concern,

We engaged Lithios to develop the first version of our iOS application. The app itself was fairly complex and the timeframe was very limited, so I was very pleased to see the the Lithios team delivered something we could all be proud of.

If you are considering working with Lithios, I would highly recommend it. In a contract software project there is no substitute for a high degree of communication and collaboration, and Lithios brings that to the table in spades. They went above and beyond what I've experienced with other service providers—to the point where I felt as if Lithios was actually part of our team, rather than an independent company.
