

My co-founder and I had developed our idea and had proven the concept when we began our search for a development team to build our platform. We called upon Marshall Brain of NCSU to point us in the right direction and asked who he thought would be a fit for our needs. Without hesitation, he sent us to Lithios. I asked him for a couple of backup names, but he assured me this was the team.

From the first meeting right up until this day they have been a great group to work with. They have been and continue to be instrumental in bringing our vision to life. They offer ideas, but are not pushy and always want to deliver what the client is asking for by insisting on communication during every sprint. If you are thinking of creating an app that requires a team of skilled aggressive developers with an entrepreneurial spirit, Lithios can help you get you to where you need to be quickly.

If you would like to discuss our experience further, follow me on scanCandy in the itunes store.

Scott Carr
Co-Founder
Red Gun Technologies, Inc.
Scancandyapp.com